

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides a camera with a built-in strobe which can reduce its whole size, while having a pop-up mechanism that enables a strobe casing attached to a camera body to be shiftable. The camera is provided with a camera body (2), a support unit (3) which has a first turning section (11) and a second turning section (12) and which is turnably supported on the camera body (2) through the first turning section (11), a strobe casing (4) turnably supported at one side thereof on the support unit (3) through the second turning section (12), a first engaging section (15) for engaging the support unit (3) at a second position, and a second engaging section (16) for engaging the strobe casing (4) at the second position.